

Panel shortlist

Fifty candidates for the four open seats on From Within, Outward, plus the chair. The first name in each table is the recommendation.

PREPARED FOR

Dr Itunu Akinware and Dr Chinwe Kpaduwa

BY

Consult for Africa

STATUS

Working shortlist. Nobody has been approached.

How to read this

Four seats are open. Dr Chinwe Kpaduwa holds the fifth, the featured fireside, so the panel needs people who cover the inside half of the proposition and one person to hold the room.

Candidates are grouped by seat and ordered by fit, not by fame. Each carries a flag where there is something you should know before anybody picks up the phone.

| Flag             | What it means                                                                      |
|------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Clean            | No conflict found. Approach freely.                                                |
| Competitor       | Runs or fronts a practice that competes with Medlyfe or with Lyfe Plastics.        |
| CFA conflict     | Already a CFA client or a live CFA prospect. Debo decides before contact.          |
| Unverified       | Could not confirm they are currently in the role stated. Check before approaching. |
| Handle with care | Public controversy, or a reason the room might react.                              |

What each seat has to do

| Seat                              | What it covers                                                              | Why it matters on the night                                                                                            |
|-----------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Longevity and health optimisation | What actually changes in the body as we age, and what can be acted on early | The proposition fails without it. This is the seat that makes the evening about longevity rather than about aesthetics |
| Metabolic health and hormones     | Metabolism, weight, body composition, hormonal change, sleep, energy        | The single subject this audience is living through and rarely gets a straight answer on                                |
| Skin and regenerative medicine    | Skin ageing and regeneration, and where aesthetic medicine genuinely helps  | Bridges the inside and the outside, and keeps the aesthetic half clinical rather than commercial                       |
| In the chair                      | Moderating the panel, the fireside and the questions                        | Decides whether it is a conversation or four presentations                                                             |

The rule that governs who we ask

Nobody is paid to bring us a patient, and nobody on this panel is there to sell. A moderator's honorarium is a different thing and is perfectly proper.

The two highest-value seats are the ones that look least commercial: a teaching-hospital clinician and a chair the room already respects. A panel of practice owners reads as a trade show.

Three things the research changed

There is no Nigerian longevity medicine profession to recruit from. No Nigerian longevity society, no verifiable Nigerian physician with A4M or ABAARM certification, and no Lagos clinic practising longevity medicine as medicine rather than as drip retail. What does exist, and is organised and board certified, is lifestyle medicine: the Society of Lifestyle Medicine of Nigeria, founded 2017, recognised by the NMA, members certified by the International Board of Lifestyle Medicine. Fill the longevity seat from there and the seat is credible. Call it longevity and it is not.

Menopause medicine in Nigeria is genuinely thin, and that is documented rather than a gap in the searching. A published survey found Nigerian gynaecologists largely manage severe menopausal symptoms with reassurance and anxiolytics rather than hormone therapy. SOGON has no menopause interest group. There is no Lagos woman gynaecologist with a public menopause practice. The subject your room most wants covered has almost nobody holding it, which is an opportunity as much as a problem.

Do not cast for reach. Outside Aproko Doctor at 2.4 million, there is no Nigerian clinical wellness voice at influencer scale. Confirmed counts on this list run to four figures. The room comes from your own list and from Capital Club, not from a panellist's following.

Seat one: longevity and health optimisation

| Name                       | Who they are                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Why this seat                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Flag                                                                                                       |
|----------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Dr Moyosore Makinde | Consultant Family Physician and Head of the Lifestyle and Wellness Unit, LASUTH. National President, Society of Lifestyle Medicine of Nigeria. Diplomate, International Board of Lifestyle Medicine                                  | The only person found who covers longevity, sleep and women's midlife in one seat, with a Lagos hospital post and a national presidency behind her. Author on sleep. Interests listed as women's health, prevention and longevity                          | Clean                                                                                                      |
| Dr Folasade Alli    | Founder and Chief of Cardiology, Lagos Executive Cardiovascular Centre, Lekki. Sixteen years Head of Internal Medicine at Lagoon. Int. Associate Member, American College of Cardiology                                              | Preventive cardiology, hypertension and metabolic disease. Her clinic runs both sleep apnoea and clinical dietetics. Writes for BellaNaija on sleep, stress and women's thyroid health, most recently February 2026, so she is current and audience facing | Clean. Also chair capable                                                                                  |
| Dr Ifeoma Monye     | Chief Consultant in Family Medicine, National Hospital Abuja. Founding President of SOLONG. Founder of the Brookfield Centre for Lifestyle Medicine, the first in Africa. Joslin and Harvard Institute of Lifestyle Medicine trained | The most decorated name in the category, and she writes consumer facing pieces so she can hold a non clinical room                                                                                                                                         | Abuja. Reachable at this notice                                                                            |
| Dr Abiodun Adelowo  | Vice President, SOLONG. Public and occupational health plus lifestyle medicine                                                                                                                                                       | Explicitly lists healthy ageing, longevity and diabetes remission as sub specialties. Two decades on reversing hypertension, diabetes and obesity                                                                                                          | Abuja                                                                                                      |
| Dr Oluwatomi Kogo   | Managing Director, Iwosan Wellness Centre, Victoria Island                                                                                                                                                                           | Runs the closest thing Lagos has to a legitimate executive longevity proposition, for your exact buyer                                                                                                                                                     | CFA conflict. Iwosan is a live CFA relationship through Fola Laoye, and adjacent competition. Debo decides |

| Name                       | Who they are                                                                                                                                                                                          | Why this seat                                                                                                     | Flag                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|----------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Dr Banji Awosika    | US board certified in internal medicine and nephrology. Plant based and lifestyle medicine advocate. Already flies in for Iwosan and has spoken at the Lagos Private Wealth Conference                | Proven in front of this exact audience                                                                            | Handle with care. Also runs a medical marijuana clinic and speaks publicly on therapeutic cannabis                                                                                                   |
| Prof Oladapo Ashiru | Chairman, MART Group. Holds a Modern Mayr Medicine diploma from Austria and runs Mart-Life Detox, the first Mayr clinic in Africa. Secretary General, International Federation of Fertility Societies | The only Nigerian with a formal European longevity and detox qualification and a clinic to match. A gravitas seat | Competitor. Mart-Life is an anti ageing clinic. He will also pull the conversation to IVF unless steered                                                                                             |
| Adanna Monde        | Founder, GLOW Health, Ikoyi                                                                                                                                                                           | Named only so you know to avoid her                                                                               | Competitor, hard. GLOW sells regenerative aesthetics, peptides, NAD+ and metabolic optimisation to the same Ikoyi buyer. She is a nurse, and one press profile overstates it as medical practitioner |
| Dr David Ikudayisi  | Medical Director, Glory Wellness and Regenerative Centre, Lekki                                                                                                                                       | Named only so you know to avoid him                                                                               | Competitor. His own bio leads with aesthetic and cosmetic medicine, and the clinic sells stem cell, PRP and ozone therapy, which is an evidence liability on a stage you host                        |
| Dr Kike Oduba       | Listed as Medical Director, FxMed, Sangotedo. IFM trained functional medicine                                                                                                                         | Functional medicine is the nearest adjacent discipline                                                            | Unverified. Her other identity is a Texas practice and a 2021 profile of her makes no mention of Nigeria. Assume US resident until proven otherwise                                                  |

Seat two: metabolic health, hormones, weight

| Name                              | Who they are                                                                                                                                                 | Why this seat                                                                                                                                            | Flag  |
|-----------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Dr Afokoghene Rita Isiavwe | Consultant Endocrinologist and Medical Director, Rainbow Specialist Medical Centre, Lekki. Twenty six years. Contributor to the national diabetes guidelines | Thyroid, PCOS, adrenal, fertility and preventative endocrinology, delivered privately to a Lekki clientele. The cleanest fit of all the endocrinologists | Clean |

| Name                                | Who they are                                                                                                                          | Why this seat                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Flag                                                                                                 |
|-------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Prof Anthonia Ogbera         | Professor of Medicine, Endocrine Unit, LASUCOM. Former Provost. Former Secretary General, Endocrine and Metabolism Society of Nigeria | Her listed research interests are reproductive endocrinology and the menopausal transition in Nigerian women, plus metabolic syndrome and obesity. On paper the most qualified person in Nigeria for this seat | Unverified clinical post, and an academic register. Check she suits an evening rather than a lecture |
| Dr Adedire Timilehin Adenuga | Lead Bariatric and Laparoscopic Surgeon, GetSlim, Victoria Island. Edinburgh and Portsmouth trained. A thousand procedures            | GetSlim is the only Nigerian clinic openly running a GLP-1 programme. He is the answer to the Ozempic question your room will actually ask                                                                     | Clean                                                                                                |
| Dr Shekina Iyefu Adanu       | Bariatric Care Physician, GetSlim. SCOPE certified by the World Obesity Federation                                                    | The only Nigerian found with a formal obesity medicine credential. A woman physician on GLP-1s lands better here than a surgeon                                                                                | Unverified whether she covers Lagos or sits in Abuja                                                 |
| Mr Abuchi Okaro              | Consultant bariatric and metabolic surgeon, Euracare, Victoria Island                                                                 | Published a ten year retrospective of his own Lagos practice in 2025, the only long run Nigerian obesity surgery dataset found. Brings the hard end, which legitimises the soft end                            | Clean                                                                                                |
| Dr Oluwarotimi Olopade       | Consultant endocrinologist, LUTH. Current Secretary General, EMSON                                                                    | Diabetes, thyroid, obesity, pituitary and reproductive disorders. Gives press interviews                                                                                                                       | Unverified. Sources conflict between LUTH and LASUTH                                                 |
| Prof Ibitrokoemi Korubo      | Consultant Endocrinologist, Euracare. Vice President, Diabetes Association of Nigeria                                                 | Endocrinology, diabetology, pituitary                                                                                                                                                                          | Unverified identity and gender. Resolve before any approach                                          |
| Dr Eniola Afolabi-Obe        | Consultant Family Physician and board certified lifestyle medicine physician, reported at LASUTH                                      | Argued publicly that perimenopause can begin in the mid thirties, and pushes bone density, lipids and hormone panels. Precisely the what should I be measuring at forty content                                | Unverified post. One index places her at a Federal Teaching Hospital                                 |
| Dr Odinaka Nwodo-Ezeribe     | NHS GP, London. Organised Menopause Matters Nigeria 2026 in Abuja                                                                     | The only person actively building menopause awareness in Nigeria                                                                                                                                               | Handle with care. Billed as a menopause specialist but her listed credentials are GP. London based   |
| Adeyinka Aderoju             | Founder, Meno Haven. Ran World Menopause Day walks in four cities                                                                     | Not a clinician. The lived experience seat, if you want one voice who went through it without guidance                                                                                                         | Clean, but bill her accurately                                                                       |

| Name                      | Who they are                                                                                                                       | Why this seat                                          | Flag                                                                  |
|---------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Dr Chito Nwana     | MD, Arabella Women's Health, Abuja. American board certified gynaecologist. Hosts HERcast. Keynoted Menopause Matters Nigeria 2026 | Perimenopause and HRT, and a broadcaster's manner      | CFA conflict. Live CFA engagement. Abuja. Debo decides before contact |
| Dr Toyin Ajayi     | Medical Director, The Bridge Clinic. MRCOG, twenty years in the UK                                                                 | Strong name, wrong subject. Will pull the panel to IVF | Clean but off brief                                                   |
| Dr Faye Iketubosin | Founder, George's Memorial Medical Centre, Lekki. Immediate past President, Association for Fertility and Reproductive Health      | Lists menopause among his interests                    | Competitor. The centre advertises cosmetic surgery                    |

Seat three: performance, sleep, nutrition, physical function

| Name                       | Who they are                                                                                                                                                                                           | Why this seat                                                                                                                                                                  | Flag                                                                                       |
|----------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Ngozi Ojora         | Founder, Elite Figures, Ikoyi. Four time NCAA All American. NASM certified, and a MedFit Menopause Health and Fitness Specialist. Has spoken to NLNG executives on the Lagos Business School programme | The audience match of the whole list. Her service lines are perimenopause, bone health and strength, which is the one seat that makes the evening actionable on Monday morning | Clean. Certificates not clinical degrees, so bill her as a coach                           |
| Dr Olusola Oguntolu | Clinic lead, Sleep Inc, Ikoyi. American Board certified in internal medicine, pulmonary, critical care and sleep medicine                                                                              | The only properly board certified sleep physician found in Lagos                                                                                                               | Unverified whether he is resident in Lagos or practising in the US                         |
| Boroji Osindero     | Founder and CEO, Wellpath Physiotherapy, Victoria Island, Ikoyi and Lekki, since 2007. Birmingham trained. Opened Lagos's first inpatient rehab facility                                               | Physical function and recovery, and she gives good copy                                                                                                                        | Unverified. Newest source found is 2020, so confirm she is still CEO                       |
| Dr Jimi Osinaike    | Sports Medicine Physician, Summit Orthopaedics. MSc Sport and Exercise Medicine, Manchester Metropolitan                                                                                               | The only true non surgical sport and exercise medicine physician identifiable in Lagos, and he argues exercise as medicine for chronic disease                                 | Unverified. Staff page undated                                                             |
| Dr Adedayo Osholowu | Managing Director, Kasi Healthcare. Interventional sports physician. IOC and FIMS trained. Visiting lecturer in sports medicine at Unilag since 2007                                                   | Sports and performance medicine with real credentials                                                                                                                          | Handle with care. His biologics work sits adjacent to aesthetics                           |
| Abasianie Udo-Umo   | Registered Dietitian, trading as The Lagos Dietitian. The most public credentialled dietitian found, at roughly six thousand followers                                                                 | Can talk about jollof and insulin in the same sentence, which matters for this room                                                                                            | Verify her Dietitians Association of Nigeria registration before billing her as registered |

| Name                       | Who they are                                                                                                                      | Why this seat                                                                                   | Flag                                                                                                                              |
|----------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Olajumoke Osunsanya | Founder, Khairo Diet Consult. Public health nutrition master's, certified diabetes educator. Corporate clients include IHS Towers | Corporate nutrition, delivered to exactly this cohort                                           | Handle with care. Her client list also includes Coca-Cola and Nigerian Breweries, which is an optics problem on a longevity stage |
| Esther Olurombi     | Clinical Dietitian, NutriFit at the Lagos Executive Cardiovascular Centre                                                         | Hospital embedded, no public profile. Pairs naturally with Dr Alli if you want a clinic pairing | Clean                                                                                                                             |
| Safiya Adamu        | Respiratory therapist running the sleep clinic at LECC                                                                            | A sleep voice if Dr Oguntolu is unavailable                                                     | Not a physician. Bill accurately                                                                                                  |

Seat four: skin and regenerative medicine

Lagos dermatology splits cleanly, and the split works in your favour. The academic bench at LUTH, LASUTH and UNILAG is deep, currently in post, publishing on exactly this subject, and has no commercial stake in aesthetics. The private aesthetic dermatologists are, without exception found, selling what MedLYFE sells. Do not mix the two on one panel.

| Name                           | Who they are                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Why this seat                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Flag                                                                                                                  |
|--------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Dr Folakemi Cole-Adeife | Consultant Dermatologist, LASUTH, and Associate Lecturer, LASUCOM. Assistant Editor, Nigerian Journal of Dermatology. Won the ILDS Young Dermatologists International Achievement Award for Africa, 2025                | The strongest single combination on this list. She is corresponding author on a May 2026 paper on sunscreen use among digitally active Africans, which found 64 per cent use it to prevent photoageing and hyperpigmentation. That is literally your subject, published this year, by her. Thirty four thousand follow her as @foladermadoc | Clean. She sells consultations, not procedures, so not a rival                                                        |
| Dr Ayesha Akinkugbe     | Associate Professor, UNILAG, and Consultant Dermatologist, LUTH. First Vice President, Nigerian Association of Dermatologists. International Fellow, American Academy of Dermatology. Sixty publications, two textbooks | Authority on skin bleaching, sunscreen and photoprotection, with no competing clinic. The decisive point: she has already sat on a commercial brand panel in Lagos, at the Eucerin launch in March 2025, so she will share a stage with a brand                                                                                             | Clean                                                                                                                 |
| Dr Ehiaghe Lonia Anaba  | Head of the Dermatology Unit, LASUTH, and Lecturer, LASUCOM. MSc Dermatopathology, UK. Trained in dermatologic surgery, aesthetic dermatology, laser dermatology and trichology                                         | The one academic who can speak credibly about lasers and energy devices, which is precisely the where does aesthetic medicine actually help seat. She attended the HEFAMAA regulators' meeting for LASUTH                                                                                                                                   | Check first. She practises aesthetic dermatology clinically. Confirm whether she has private rooms before seating her |

| Name                                 | Who they are                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Why this seat                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Flag                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|--------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Dr Erere Otr ofanowei         | Senior Lecturer, UNILAG, and Consultant Dermatologist, LUTH. Treasurer, Nigerian Association of Dermatologists. ISAD Research Fellow                                                                                                                    | The best pure scientific fit for skin ageing and regeneration in African skin. Her research is the biophysical properties of African skin, and her own profile describes her as a public speaker, so she is willing | Clean. Around five hundred followers, which is the point: credibility, not promotion                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Prof Olusola Ayanlowo         | Professor of Medicine, UNILAG. Head of the Dermatology and Genitourinary Unit, LUTH. Editor in Chief, Nigerian Journal of Dermatology. MSc Clinical Dermatology, King's College London. Eighty papers                                                   | The most senior serving dermatology voice in Lagos. She gave UNILAG's 465th inaugural lecture in July 2026, titled The Skin: Your Passport, Beauty and Defence, which is almost your event title                    | Handle with care. Her research is immune mediated disease, not ageing, and she may decline to endorse cosmetic procedures. Approach by formal letter to the department                                                                                                                            |
| Prof Adebola Ogunbiyi         | Professor of Medicine, University of Ibadan, and Consultant Dermatologist, UCH. Vice President, International Society of Dermatology. Chair, Faculty Board of Internal Medicine at the National Postgraduate Medical College                            | Gave the guest lecture at the LUTH dermatology centre commissioning, so she travels to Lagos for the right occasion                                                                                                 | Ibadan. Budget travel and a hotel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Prof Yetunde Olumide, Emerita | First female Emeritus Professor of Medicine, UNILAG, and former Dean. Fellow of the Nigerian Academy of Science. Author of The Vanishing Black African Woman. Confirmed in public life: she commissioned LUTH's new dermatology centre in November 2025 | Opening remarks or an honoured elder moment, not a working seat. She is 83                                                                                                                                          | Handle with care, seriously. Her life's work is a sustained indictment of the skin lightening industry and she may read an aesthetics evening as adjacent to it. She is either your strongest credibility asset or the worst moment of the night, and the framing of the invitation decides which |
| Prof Dasetima Altraide        | President, Nigerian Association of Dermatologists. Consultant Dermatologist, University of Port Harcourt Teaching Hospital. Fronted the NAD anti bleaching and Embrace Your Skin campaigns                                                              | Worth the travel only if you want the association's institutional imprimatur on the evening                                                                                                                         | Port Harcourt                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Dr Cynthia Ebie               | Consultant Dermatologist and Deputy Clinical Director, General Hospital Lagos                                                                                                                                                                           | Was a panellist at the Eucerin launch, so she is stage ready                                                                                                                                                        | Competitor. She is also the named doctor on a Victoria Island clinic advertising anti ageing, body contouring and cosmetic dermatological surgery                                                                                                                                                 |

| Name                                  | Who they are                                                                                                                                      | Why this seat                       | Flag                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|---------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Dr Uzo Iloabachie              | Founder, Skintisfaction, Lekki. King's College London educated                                                                                    | Media comfortable and well regarded | Competitor. Her site sells toxin, fillers, peels and laser. Separately, her two 2025 awards are from pay to enter directory schemes, so do not repeat them from the stage as peer recognition |
| Dr Hilda Ashio Titiloye        | Founder and Lead Aesthetic Physician, Skin101 Clinics, Ikoyi and Port Harcourt. Postgraduate dermatology, Queen Mary. Aesthetic medicine, Córdoba | Strong clinician                    | Competitor, same catchment                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Phoenix Derma, Victoria Island | Dr Veronica Oguike, Dr Mayowa Timothy, Dr Preye Ezetu                                                                                             | Named so you avoid them             | Competitor on your doorstep. Toxin, laser tightening, microneedling, IV infusions                                                                                                             |

Seat five: the chair, and the fireside host

These are two jobs, not one. The panel needs a moderator who can make four clinicians sound like one argument. The fireside needs an interviewer who can get Dr Kpaduwa to talk about why women ask for what they ask for. The best person for each is rarely the same person.

| Name                     | Who they are                                                                                                                                                                                      | Why                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Flag                                                                                                    |
|--------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Adesuwa Onyenokwe | Founder and Editor in Chief, TW Magazine. Created, produced and hosted Seriously Speaking on Channels. Now runs IN DEPTH, with Governor Sanwo-Olu among recent guests. Four decades in journalism | The panel chair. She sells moderation as a service and books for exactly this kind of evening, so you get a professional with a rate card rather than a celebrity doing a favour. She is the room's own age and TW's readership is the guest list. Sixty three thousand, verified | Clean. The least glamorous name here, so pair her with someone else for sparkle if the evening needs it |
| Dr Pamela Ajayi   | President, Healthcare Federation of Nigeria. Chairman, The Bridge Clinic. Founder of PathCare, now SYNLAB. Hosts Doctors on Air with Dr Pamela                                                    | The clinical alternative for the chair. Board level standing, broadcaster's instincts, a diagnostics frame that connects every seat, and nothing of her own to sell                                                                                                                      | Clean                                                                                                   |

| Name                            | Who they are                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Why                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Flag                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|---------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Ezinne Akudo             | Lawyer, MBA, 38th Miss Nigeria, founder of The Eight Foundation. Hosts Beyond with Ezinne, season two launched June 2026                                                                                            | The fireside host, if you want warmth. The season two launch included a fireside chat she conducted herself, so she does this exact format. Her register is vulnerability and the in between phases of life, which is right for a surgeon's conversation. 159k, verified   | At 36 she sits below the median age of the room, and some of your older guests will read her as the pageant winner rather than the lawyer                                                                    |
| Funmi Iyanda             | CEO, Oya Media. Host and executive producer of Public Eye. Created New Dawn. Aspen and Tutu fellow. Prix Pictet jury                                                                                                | The fireside host, if you want it quoted for a year. Arguably the most skilled long form interviewer Nigeria has produced and the most intellectually serious name available                                                                                               | Handle with care. She interrogates rather than hosts, and she is principally London based now. If you want warm and aspirational she is a risk. If you want genuinely interesting, she is the best pick here |
| Kate Henshaw             | Actress, author and advocate. Medical science graduate. The most sustained public voice in Nigeria on menopause and ageing in a woman's body, through Without Pause. 3.2 million, verified                          | The only name whose public subject is literally ageing in a woman's body, and she is inside your age band. In a room of women 35 to 65 she makes the conversation safe to have out loud                                                                                           | Check first. She appeared at a 2026 Efamol evening primrose oil unveiling, so confirm no ambassadorship collides with anything MedLYFE sells in hormonal support                                             |
| Betty Irabor             | Founder of Genevieve Magazine. Author of Dust to Dew. Mental health and wellbeing keynote speaker                                                                                                                   | Her stated thesis is that anti ageing should begin with de clogging the body and mind rather than covering it with creams. That is almost exactly From Within, Outward, and it makes aesthetic medicine the last ten per cent of a longevity argument rather than the whole of it | Genevieve was rested in 2023, so she brings personal standing rather than a live platform. She is a keynote speaker more than a moderator, so confirm she will chair                                         |
| Olatowun Candide-Johnson | Founder and CEO, GAIA Africa, the private members club for senior African women, with GAIA House on Victoria Island. Thirty years as a lawyer, formerly General Counsel for the Total upstream companies in Nigeria | Treat as a host partnership, not a hired chair. She is not reach, she is the room. GAIA's membership is your 130 women, and her presence makes this a peer gathering rather than a marketing evening                                                                       | Expect GAIA to want co branding and a say in the list. Probably worth it                                                                                                                                     |

| Name                            | Who they are                                                                                                                                                                                       | Why                                                                                                                               | Flag                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|---------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Didi Akinyelure          | Multimedia journalist. BBC World News Komla Dumor Award, 2016. Professionally moderates at the Africa CEO Forum, the London Business School Africa Summit and Africa Oil Week                      | The best pure technician available. If the panel risks becoming a seminar she keeps it moving and asks the uncomfortable question | Business news register can read cold in a beauty adjacent room, and she is not reliably Lagos resident. Confirm she is in country                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Zainab Balogun-Nwachukwu | Actress, host and executive producer, ZABA Productions. Former host of The Voice Nigeria. Public endometriosis advocate. 354k, verified, with a bio that reads women's health, wellness, lifestyle | Polished broadcast host, genuinely in women's health, and a face the luxury end of Lagos associates with taste                    | Could not verify her current broadcast platform is in production                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Amina Oyagbola           | Founder and Chair, WISCAR. Board Chair, Afrobarometer since 2025. LLM Cambridge, MBA Lancaster. Thirty years across law, banking, oil and gas and telecoms                                         | Gravitas and a convening network of senior professional women                                                                     | She convenes rather than moderates. Found speaking at WISCAR events, not chairing other people's panels                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Bolanle Olukanni         | TV and radio host. Hosted Moments with Mo and Project Fame. Hosts Channels TV's International Women's Month special                                                                                | A genuine professional event host with conference experience                                                                      | Entertainment coded. In a room of CEOs and clinicians she may read as the MC rather than the chair. Her verified handle is @bolinto                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Dr Tewa Onasanya         | Founder, Exquisite Magazine and the ELOY Awards. Organiser of Wellness and Style Live, sixth edition September 2026                                                                                | Wellness positioning, affluent female audience, proven live format                                                                | Two flags. Her doctorate is honorary, from an institute rather than a university, so introducing her as Dr alongside a board certified surgeon and consultant dermatologists is a credibility hazard. And Wellness and Style Live is the closest existing Lagos event to AGELESS, so she is a soft competitor for the same sponsors and the same guest list |
| Mo Abudu                 | Chairman, EbonyLife. 2.2 million, verified                                                                                                                                                         | Would guarantee press                                                                                                             | Avoid for this date. EbonyLife Place London opens in October 2026 and her TIFF film releases in December, so her October is spoken for. She is also a principal rather than a hired chair and would reframe the evening around herself                                                                                                                      |

| Name                      | Who they are                                                                               | Why                      | Flag                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|---------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Toke Makinwa       | Media personality. 5.4 million, verified                                                   | Largest reach available  | Avoid. She self identifies as an influencer, which is outside the brief. She has recurring public conflict. Most relevant, she is a standing subject of public speculation about skin lightening and cosmetic surgery, so putting her in front of a plastic surgeon makes the coverage about her face rather than about MedLYFE |
| I Said What I Said | Feyikemi Abudo and Jola Ayeye. Nigeria's biggest podcast, over a million listeners claimed | Unmatched cultural reach | Wrong for this. The audience is 25 to 40, the register is deliberately profane, and as a double act they take the room rather than handing it to Dr Kpaduwa. Better as a separate younger skewed partnership                                                                                                                    |

What I would actually book

| Job                                                      | First call                                                     | Reserve                                                                                           |
|----------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Panel chair                                       | Adesuwa Onyenokwe, a professional moderator the room's own age | Dr Pamela Ajayi, if you want a clinician in the chair                                             |
| The fireside with Dr Kpaduwa                      | Ezinne Akudo for warmth                                        | Funmi Iyanda, if you will accept a hard question in exchange for being quoted for a year          |
| Longevity and health optimisation                 | Dr Moyosore Makinde                                            | Dr Folasade Alli                                                                                  |
| Metabolic health and hormones                     | Dr Afokoghene Isiavwe                                          | Dr Timi Adenuga or Dr Shekina Adanu, if the Ozempic question is to be answered rather than dodged |
| Performance and physical function                 | Ngozi Ojora                                                    | Dr Olusola Oguntolu, if sleep earns its own seat and he is in the country                         |
| Skin and regenerative medicine                    | Dr Folakemi Cole-Adeife                                        | Dr Ayesha Akinkugbe, then Dr Ehiaghe Anaba for the laser and devices answer                       |
| Host partnership, not a seat                      | Olatowun Candide-Johnson and GAIA Africa                       | The shortest route to 130 of the right women in the room                                          |
| Opening remarks, if framed as honouring the field | Prof Yetunde Olumide                                           | Only with the framing settled first                                                               |

The three calls worth making first are Onyenokwe, Makinde and Cole-Adeife. The chair sets the tone, the longevity seat is what makes this an evening about ageing rather than about treatments, and Cole-Adeife brings published work on photoageing plus an audience that already reads her on it.

Two risks that sit on the stage rather than on the list

Scope of practice is a live regulatory question in Lagos right now. HEFAMAA has already convened dermatologists, dentists and aesthetics practitioners in a formal meeting with the dermatology, plastic surgery and aesthetic medicine associations present. If the panel drifts into who is allowed to inject, that is a regulatory moment on your stage rather than merely a lively one. Brief the chair to steer round it.

What a panellist says about MedLYFE's services from the stage carries advertising risk. ARCON polices health advertising and the liability sits with the advertiser. A clinician praising a named treatment from a stage you are hosting is closer to an advertisement than it feels in the room. Brief the panel to discuss categories, not the host's menu.

Before anybody is approached

Four names need a decision from Debo rather than a telephone call. Dr Chito Nwana at Arabella and Dr Uju Rapu at Belfiore are live CFA relationships. Iwosan, through Dr Oluwatomi Kogo, is both adjacent competition and a Fola Laoye relationship. Grandville does not appear anywhere on this list, because it is simultaneously the direct competitor and a live CFA marketing prospect.

Two more need a check rather than a decision. Confirm whether Dr Ehiaghe Anaba's clinical aesthetics work makes her a rival in practice as well as a colleague in theory, and whether Kate Henshaw's Efamol relationship collides with anything MedLYFE sells.

Ten entries across the list carry an unverified flag, mostly on whether somebody is still in the post stated. Verify the post before a name goes on anything printed, because a panellist billed with the wrong hospital is the kind of error a room of clinicians notices.

One bench you already have. MedLYFE's own regenerative medicine conference in February 2026 fielded Dr Adedotun Ajelabi, Dr Itunu Akinware, the Lagos Commissioner for Health Prof Akin Abayomi, and international speakers from the American Board of Regenerative Medicine and the Medezee Group. If a seat stays empty, that bench is already warm. Prof Abayomi is the obvious dignitary, though he heads the ministry that owns HEFAMAA, which makes a commercial aesthetics evening a delicate ask.