Working shortlist. Nobody has been approached.

Three findings that shaped the casting

There is no Nigerian longevity medicine profession to recruit from. No society, no verifiable Nigerian physician with A4M or ABAARM certification, and no Lagos clinic practising longevity medicine as medicine rather than as drip retail. What does exist, organised and board certified, is lifestyle medicine, through the Society of Lifestyle Medicine of Nigeria. Fill the seat from there and it is credible.

Menopause medicine in Nigeria is genuinely thin, and it is documented. A published survey found Nigerian gynaecologists largely manage severe menopausal symptoms with reassurance and anxiolytics rather than hormone therapy, and SOGON has no menopause interest group. The subject this room most wants covered has almost nobody holding it.

Do not cast for reach. Outside one name at 2.4 million there is no Nigerian clinical wellness voice at influencer scale, and confirmed counts here run to four figures. Seventy guests come from your own list and from Capital Club, not from a panellist's following.

Seat one: longevity and health optimisation

Name	Who they are	Why	Flag
Dr Moyosore Makinde	Consultant Family Physician and Head of the Lifestyle and Wellness Unit, LASUTH. National President, Society of Lifestyle Medicine of Nigeria	The only person found who covers longevity, sleep and women's midlife in one seat, with a Lagos hospital post and a national presidency behind her	Clean
Dr Folasade Alli	Founder and Chief of Cardiology, Lagos Executive Cardiovascular Centre, Lekki. Sixteen years Head of Internal Medicine at Lagoon	Preventive cardiology and metabolic disease. Her clinic runs sleep apnoea and dietetics. Writes for BellaNaija on women's thyroid health, most recently February 2026	Clean. Also chair capable
Dr Ifeoma Monye	Chief Consultant in Family Medicine, National Hospital Abuja. Founding President of SOLONG. Founder of the Brookfield Centre, the first lifestyle medicine centre in Africa	The most decorated name in the category, and she writes consumer facing pieces so she can hold a non clinical room	Abuja. Reachable at this notice
Dr Abiodun Adelowo	Vice President, SOLONG. Public and occupational health plus lifestyle medicine	Explicitly lists healthy ageing, longevity and diabetes remission as sub specialties	Abuja

Seat two: metabolic health, hormones and weight

Name	Who they are	Why	Flag
Dr Afokoghene Isiavwe	Consultant Endocrinologist and Medical Director, Rainbow Specialist Medical Centre, Lekki. Twenty six years. Contributor to the national diabetes guidelines	Thyroid, PCOS, adrenal and preventative endocrinology, delivered privately to a Lekki clientele. The cleanest fit of the endocrinologists	Clean

Name	Who they are	Why	Flag
Prof Anthonia Ogbera	Professor of Medicine, Endocrine Unit, LASUCOM. Former Provost. Former Secretary General of the Endocrine and Metabolism Society of Nigeria	Her listed research interests are reproductive endocrinology and the menopausal transition in Nigerian women. On paper the most qualified person in Nigeria for this seat	Unverified clinical post, and an academic register. Check she suits an evening
Dr Timi Adenuga	Lead Bariatric and Laparoscopic Surgeon, GetSlim, Victoria Island. Edinburgh and Portsmouth trained. A thousand procedures	GetSlim is the only Nigerian clinic openly running a GLP-1 programme. He is the answer to the Ozempic question the room will actually ask	Clean
Dr Eniola Afolabi-Obe	Consultant Family Physician and board certified lifestyle medicine physician, reported at LASUTH	Argues publicly that perimenopause can begin in the mid thirties, and pushes bone density, lipids and hormone panels. The what should I be measuring at forty seat	Unverified post. Confirm before printing

Seat three: performance, nutrition and physical function

Ngozi Ojora	Founder, Elite Figures, Ikoyi. Four time NCAA All American. NASM certified and a MedFit Menopause Health and Fitness Specialist. Has spoken to NLNG executives on the Lagos Business School programme	The audience match of the whole list. Perimenopause, bone health and strength, which is the seat that makes the evening actionable on Monday morning	Clean. Certificates not clinical degrees, so bill her as a coach
Gbemi Giwa	Fitness and nutrition coach. Founder of the African Fat Loss Method. Roughly eighty two thousand on Instagram, over a hundred thousand across platforms	The best cultural fit on the list for the weight question, because she answers the one this room actually has: how to eat Nigerian food and still change body composition	Check the register. Her programmes are sold on lose three to ten kilos and keep your curves without giving up jollof, which is diet industry language sitting next to consultant physicians. No supplements, which is the less damaging version. Certifying body not named anywhere public, and she now works between Lagos and London, so confirm she is here

Dr Olusesan Awe	Founder and CEO, Physio-Fit Physiotherapy Hospital, Lagos	The better structural answer for a man in this seat. A clinical movement professional rather than a trainer, covering joints, mobility and staying able bodied at sixty five, which is the longevity question this audience actually asks and which nobody else on the panel covers	Not vetted in depth. Confirm the post and that he presents well
Foluso Ogunwale	Founder and CEO, i-Fitness. Built West Africa's largest gym chain from a three bedroom flat on Admiralty Way to more than twenty four branches. Seven years at Skye Bank before that	The cleanest well known man in Nigerian fitness. He speaks to the national picture, what Nigerians actually do, what they pay for and why they stop, and on a panel of physicians he reads as industry rather than influencer	Clean. A business operator, not a trainer or a scientist. Low social profile, which here is a feature

Alternates for this seat. Dr Olusola Oguntolu of Sleep Inc, Ikoyi, the only board certified sleep physician found in Lagos, if sleep earns a seat of its own and he is in the country. Boroji Osindero, founder of Wellpath Physiotherapy, if a woman physiotherapist is preferred to Dr Awe. Abasianie Udo-Umo, The Lagos Dietitian, if the nutrition seat should go to a registered dietitian rather than a coach.

On the question of a prominent fitness man. Every well known Nigerian man in fitness is a personality first. We could not find a single publicly visible Nigerian male strength and conditioning professional holding a formal credential. So the choice is between a personality with a real business behind him and changing the shape of the seat, which is why Dr Awe is above Mr Ogunwale.

Two names that will come up, and should not. Maje Ayida of Eden Lifestyle is professionally the obvious answer, with a corporate wellness arm and a real industry position. He is also Toke Makinwa's former husband, the marriage was dissolved in 2017 on proven adultery after a very public scandal, and he was still giving interviews about it in 2025. Seventy affluent Lagos women between thirty five and sixty five is the single audience most likely to know that story in detail, and she is already on our do not approach list for separate reasons. Kemen has the largest following of any Nigerian trainer at around two hundred and sixty thousand and runs two Lagos gyms, but he was disqualified from Big Brother Naija in 2017 for touching a sleeping female housemate and publicly apologised to women across Africa for it. Neither belongs on a stage with a female plastic surgeon in front of this room.

Seat four: skin and regenerative medicine

Lagos dermatology splits cleanly and the split works in your favour. The academic bench at LUTH, LASUTH and UNILAG is deep, in post, publishing on exactly this subject and has no commercial stake in aesthetics. Every private aesthetic dermatologist found is selling what MedLYFE sells. Take from the first group only.

Name	Who they are	Why	Flag
Dr Folakemi Cole-Adeife	Consultant Dermatologist, LASUTH, and Associate Lecturer, LASUCOM. ILDS Young Dermatologists International Achievement Award for Africa, 2025	The strongest single combination here. Corresponding author on a May 2026 paper finding 64 per cent of digitally active Africans use sunscreen to prevent photoageing. Your subject, published this year, by her. Thirty four thousand already follow her on it	Clean. Sells consultations, not procedures

Dr Ayesha Akinkugbe	Associate Professor, UNILAG, and Consultant Dermatologist, LUTH. First Vice President, Nigerian Association of Dermatologists. Sixty publications, two textbooks	Authority on skin bleaching, sunscreen and photoprotection with no competing clinic. Decisively, she has already sat on a commercial brand panel in Lagos, so she will share a stage	Clean
Dr Ehiaghe Anaba	Head of the Dermatology Unit, LASUTH. MSc Dermatopathology, UK. Trained in dermatologic surgery, aesthetic and laser dermatology	The one academic who can speak credibly about lasers and energy devices, which is the where does aesthetic medicine actually help seat	Check first. She practises aesthetic dermatology clinically. Confirm whether she has private rooms
Dr Erere Otr ofanowei	Senior Lecturer, UNILAG, and Consultant Dermatologist, LUTH. Treasurer, Nigerian Association of Dermatologists	The best pure scientific fit for skin ageing in African skin. Her research is the biophysical properties of African skin, and she describes herself as a public speaker	Clean. Tiny following, which is the point

Seat five: the panel chair

The chair decides whether this is a conversation or four presentations in a row.

Name	Who they are	Why	Flag
Adesuwa Onyenokwe	Founder and Editor in Chief, TW Magazine. Created and hosted Seriously Speaking on Channels. Now runs IN DEPTH. Four decades in journalism. 63k, verified	She sells moderation as a service and books for exactly this kind of evening, so you get a professional with a rate card rather than a celebrity doing a favour. She is the room's own age and TW's readership is the guest list	Clean. The least glamorous name here
Dr Pamela Ajayi	President, Healthcare Federation of Nigeria. Chairman, The Bridge Clinic. Founder of PathCare, now SYNLAB. Hosts Doctors on Air with Dr Pamela	The clinical alternative. Board level standing, broadcaster's instincts, a diagnostics frame that connects every seat, nothing of her own to sell	Clean
Didi Akinyelure	BBC World News Komla Dumor Award, 2016. Moderates at the Africa CEO Forum, the London Business School Africa Summit and Africa Oil Week	The best pure technician. If four clinicians risk turning it into a seminar, she keeps it moving	Business register can read cold. Confirm she is in country
Olatowun Candide-Johnson	Founder and CEO, GAIA Africa, the private members club for senior African women, with GAIA House on Victoria Island	Better as a host partnership than a hired chair. She is not reach, she is the room, and GAIA's membership is your seventy women	Expect GAIA to want co branding and a say in the list

Seat six: the fireside with Dr Kpaduwa

A different skill from chairing a panel. This one has to get her talking about why women ask for what they ask for.

Ezinne Akudo	Lawyer and MBA, 38th Miss Nigeria. Hosts Beyond with Ezinne, season two launched June 2026. 159k, verified	Warmth. Her own launch included a fireside she conducted herself, so she does this exact format, and her register is vulnerability and the in between phases of life	At 36 she sits below the room's median age
Funmi Iyanda	CEO, Oya Media. Host of Public Eye. Created New Dawn. Aspen and Tutu fellow. 46k, verified	Depth. The most skilled long form interviewer Nigeria has produced. Pick her if you want the evening quoted for a year	She interrogates rather than hosts, and she is London based now. Accept that she may ask a hard question on camera
Kate Henshaw	Actress, author and advocate. Medical science graduate. The most sustained public voice in Nigeria on menopause and ageing, through Without Pause. 3.2m, verified	The only name whose public subject is literally ageing in a woman's body, and she is inside the room's age band	Check her Efamol relationship does not collide with anything MedLYFE sells
Zainab Balogun-Nwachukwu	Actress, host and executive producer, ZABA Productions. Former host of The Voice Nigeria. Endometriosis advocate. 354k, verified	Polished, genuinely in women's health, and a face the luxury end of Lagos associates with taste	Could not verify her broadcast platform is currently in production

Added at your request, with what we found

Joycee Awosika, founder and chief executive of the ORÍKÌ Group. Note the spelling. She runs a wellness business of real scale: ten years old, somewhere between thirteen and fifteen spas plus six hair restoration centres across several African countries, with her own manufacturing in Nigeria, a training institute and an app. Roughly thirty three thousand on Instagram, and genuine international standing through the World Economic Forum and the Presidential Precinct.

She is a strong name and we would want her in the room. We would not put her on this panel, for two reasons.

The first is register. She is an energy economist by training, with a career at Constellation Energy, DFID and the Ministry of Power before ORÍKÌ. She has no health credential, and on a stage with three consultant physicians and a board certified plastic surgeon she would be the only person with no clinical training. Her public themes are natural ingredients, building an African wellness industry, vocational training and entrepreneurial structure. We found nothing from her on hormones, metabolic health, menopause or the biology of ageing.

The second is commercial. ORÍKÌ is a spa chain and a skincare line in Lagos. That is directly adjacent to a longevity and aesthetics centre, and she would be selling a category the host also sells.

Our suggestion. Invite her as a guest, and ask her to co-host or convene rather than to sit on the panel. A wellness industry founder of her standing bringing her own list is worth more to this evening than a fifth chair, and it avoids both problems at once.

Do not approach

Name	Why not
Mo Abudu	EbonyLife Place London opens in October 2026 and her TIFF film releases in December, so her October is spoken for. She is a principal rather than a hired chair and would reframe the evening around herself
Toke Makinwa	Self identifies as an influencer, which is outside the brief, and she is a standing subject of public speculation about skin lightening and cosmetic surgery. Put her in front of a plastic surgeon and the coverage becomes about her face
Dr Tewa Onasanya	Her doctorate is honorary, from an institute rather than a university, so introducing her as Dr alongside a board certified surgeon is a credibility hazard. Wellness and Style Live is also the closest existing Lagos event to AGELESS, so she is a soft competitor for the same guest list
Private aesthetic dermatologists	Skintisfaction, Skin101, Phoenix Derma and Derma Lagos all sell what MedLYFE sells. A rival with a microphone

Before anybody is approached

Three names are CFA relationships and need a decision from Debo rather than a telephone call: Dr Chito Nwana at Arabella, Dr Uju Rapu at Belfiore, and Iwosan through Dr Oluwatomi Kogo, which is also adjacent competition. Grandville appears nowhere here, because it is simultaneously the direct competitor and a live CFA marketing prospect.

Six entries carry an unverified flag, almost all on whether somebody is still in the post stated. Verify before a name goes on anything printed, because a panellist billed with the wrong hospital is the kind of error a room of clinicians notices.

Two risks sit on the stage rather than on the list. HEFAMAA has scope of practice live in Lagos right now, so a panel drifting into who may inject is a regulatory moment, not merely a lively one. And a clinician praising a named treatment from a stage you host is closer to an advertisement than it feels, with the ARCON liability sitting on the advertiser. Brief the chair on both.

One bench you already have. MedLYFE's own regenerative medicine conference in February 2026 fielded Dr Adedotun Ajelabi, Dr Itunu Akinware and the Lagos Commissioner for Health. If a seat stays empty, that bench is warm.
