CARE FOR OUR PARENTS

LAGOS

Somebody has to look after your mother. It should not have to be guesswork.

ilé is building a residential home in Lagos for older people who need real care, run to a standard this country has not been offered before. It is not open yet. Care in your family's own home is available now.

100 of 100 founding family places remain.

You already know how this usually goes

A parent gets frailer. A fall, a stroke, a diagnosis, or simply the slow arithmetic of age. The family holds a meeting. Somebody takes leave they cannot afford. Somebody sends money instead, and feels the difference.

Then a helper is found through a friend of a friend. She may be wonderful. She may be untrained, unsupervised and alone with a person who needs skilled care at three in the morning. Nobody is checking. Nobody wrote anything down. When it goes wrong the family finds out late.

This is not a failure of love. It is a failure of infrastructure. There has never been a proper option to choose.

WHAT WE ARE BUILDING

A home. Not an institution, and not a ward.

A place where an older person has their own room, their own things and their own routine, with nurses and trained carers there around the clock and a doctor who knows them. Where the food is food they recognise. Where family can visit and be glad they came, rather than relieved to leave.

We are looking for the right building now. When we have it we will fit it properly for people who are frail: the corridors, the bathrooms and the lighting all change when you build for someone who uses a walking frame.

We will not open until we are registered and inspected, and we will tell you honestly where we are along the way.

Why the waiting list matters

A home like this is built once and lived in for decades. Who it is built for changes everything about it: how many rooms, how much nursing, which part of Lagos, what it costs.

So we are asking the families who would actually use it, before we pour concrete rather than after. If you join the list you are not queueing. You are telling us what to build.

AVAILABLE NOW

Care in your family's own home, while the home is being built

Most families are not ready to move a parent anywhere, and most parents do not want to go. Care at home is often the right answer for years before it stops being the right answer. This is the part of ilé you can use today.

Nursing visits

Wounds, catheters, injections, medication that has to be given properly and recorded. Delivered by a nurse, not by someone improvising.

Personal care

Washing, dressing, moving safely from bed to chair. The daily help that keeps someone comfortable and keeps their dignity intact.

After a hospital stay

The weeks after discharge are when people fall, stop their tablets and go back in. We cover that gap with a plan rather than hope.

Company

For someone who is mostly alone. Not a substitute for family, but somebody reliable who turns up, notices things and tells you.

Memory loss

Care for someone living with dementia, from carers trained for it, working to a plan that does not change every week.

Comfort at the end

Care at the end of life, at home, with pain managed properly and the family supported through it.

IF YOU ARE ABROAD

You are four thousand miles away and you are still the one deciding

You send the money. You make the calls at odd hours. You hear that everything is fine, and you have no way to know whether it is. The hardest part of caring for a parent from London or Houston is not the cost. It is not being able to see.

So we built the seeing in. You get a record of every visit, what was done and by whom, photographs where your family agrees to them, and a written summary each month. When something changes you hear it from us first, not from a relative weeks later.

And you can pay from where you are, in your own currency.

What a month looks like

- Every visit logged as it happens, so you can look at any hour of the night and see the truth.
- A written summary each month: how they are eating, sleeping, moving and managing their medication.
- One person at ilé who knows your family and answers when you call.
- A straight answer when something is wrong, including when it is our fault.

HOW WE WORK

The boring things, done properly

There is nothing clever about any of this. It is simply what good care requires, and almost nobody in this market is doing it.

1. Written protocols, signed off before anyone works to them
Medication, falls, infection control, when to escalate and who to call. Our clinical lead approves each one before a carer is asked to follow it.

2. Carers who are trained, supervised and paid properly
Most of what goes wrong in this work goes wrong because the person providing the care was never trained and is not supervised. We would rather grow slowly than staff badly.

3. A named hospital ready to receive
Before we care for anyone we agree where they go in an emergency and how they get there. A plan made on the night is not a plan.

4. A record of every visit, which you can see
What was done, when, and by whom. Not because families ask for it, though they do, but because care that is not written down cannot be checked.

FOUNDING FAMILIES

The first hundred families shape what this becomes

Joining early is not a queue ticket. The first hundred families tell us what to build and get treated accordingly, for as long as they stay with us.

- ✓ First call when places in the home open, before anyone else.
- ✓ The founding rate, held for you when you start.
- ✓ A free first assessment of what your family actually needs, whether or not you go on to use us.
- ✓ An honest update as the home takes shape, including when things are slower than we hoped.

Tell us about your family

It takes about two minutes. There is nothing to pay and nothing to commit to. If what you need is urgent, say so below and we will call you first.
