One day. Around fifty pieces. Made for Lagos.

FOR
FROM SHOOT

Dr Chinwe Kpaduwa and Dr Itunu Akinware
Consult for Africa
Thursday 8 October. Two days.

Why

Chinwe's three hundred videos already make the argument, and it is a good one. None of this day repeats it.

What they cannot do is convert a Lagos buyer, because they were made for Americans and never mention Nigeria. The woman in Ikoyi is not asking what an abdominoplasty is. She is asking who will hold the instrument, who answers at two in the morning, whether she will look obviously done, and whether she should just fly to Istanbul.

Those four questions have Lagos answers and nobody has filmed them.

Every piece is made to be sent to one person. Somebody enquires, goes quiet, and gets one video answering the exact thing she hesitated over. That is what was missing in March.

Your three decisions, today

Who
Interview, not prompter	Chinwe	The calendar has decided this one. Nobody writes and approves forty scripts in two days, but we can write forty good questions by tomorrow. It also plays to how you already talk
MedLYFE's physician on camera	Itunu	Two hours, two conversations with Chinwe. Answers "who is actually treating me" far better than she can alone. The highest value addition on the list
Three locations	Itunu	Clinic for two setups, a studio for one, a private interior with a terrace for two. We can source the third
Confirm Thursday	Both	Kalkulus are being asked today whether they can crew it at two days. If they cannot, we need a second name by tonight

What we need from each of you

Chinwe: the day itself, and ninety minutes today or tomorrow morning to cut the shot list with us. That call is now the critical path. Ten questions in the full brief only you can answer, and the question list cannot be written without them.

One is yours to refuse. The strongest idea we have is to take the real questions the March enquirers asked, anonymise them, and have you answer the commonest ten on camera. Their words, not invented ones.

Itunu: MedLYFE's physician for the afternoon, the locations, and the go-ahead once Kalkulus quote. Nothing else until the day.

The four rules we work inside

No patients, no patient images, no before and after	So we sell with judgement rather than results, which is closer to how Chinwe already talks
No product brand names	Toxin and fillers are prescription only here. Generic names throughout
No treatment filmed on anybody	Until registration is settled in writing. Equipment and hands only
Chinwe explains, the clinic books	Every call to action belongs to MedLYFE

Next

Today	Your three decisions. Kalkulus confirm they can crew Thursday. Locations confirmed
Today or tomorrow, 90 minutes	The session. We bring a shot list longer than the day, you cut it
Wednesday	Question list written and with you and the crew by the evening. Recce
Thursday 8 October	Eight hours, three locations, five setups
Ten working days later	First cuts

The full brief has the shot list, five provocations to kill or keep, and the ten questions. It is long on purpose, because it is for arguing with.

What two days costs. Interview-led at this notice is the right call and loses very little. What it does cost is volume: expect forty good pieces rather than fifty, and expect to pick up the rest on a half day later. The one thing that would genuinely hurt is holding the session on Wednesday instead of today.
