A letter from Debo

Favour, Ruth,

Welcome to Consult for Africa. You join as analysts in the Office of the Founding Partner, and I want you in the real work from the first week rather than watching it from the side.

We are a healthcare management consultancy. Hospital owners, group chief executives and boards hire us when something they have built is not performing, when they are about to commit serious money, or when they need somebody to run the thing for them. Most of what we do is the third kind by the end. Around that work we have built products for the three things that break in every hospital we walk into: leadership, workforce and the economics of a practice.

You report to Ezinne Orji, my Executive Assistant. She briefs your work, reviews it and runs your monthly evaluation. When you are stuck, it goes to her, not to me. Abigail Oladejo is in the office with you and has been here since September, so she is the person to ask how something is actually done.

Each of you is staffed on three live engagements as an analyst. That is deliberate. You will learn more from keeping one client's record accurate for a month than from any amount of reading, and the firm needs the records kept.

Two things I hold everyone to. Everything you see here is confidential, including client names, findings and anything you overhear. And when you do not understand something, say so early. Marking a task blocked with a clear reason is good work, not a failure.

Read Parts One and Two before Monday. Ezinne will sit down with you both on Monday 2 November to walk through the platform and your first week.

Warm regards,

Dr Debo Odulana

Founding Partner, Consult for Africa

How to use this pack

| Part | What it covers | When |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | Your role, who you report to, how work reaches you | Before Monday |
| 2 | Your engagements | Before Monday |
| 3 | The platform | Monday, in front of the screen |
| 4 | Your standing weekly work | Week one |
| 5 | How you are evaluated | Week one, then monthly |
| 6 | How we write, and what never leaves the building | Before you write anything |
| 7 | Your first two weeks | Week one |

This pack carries no fees, balances or client commercials. That is policy, not an oversight.

Part One: Your role

1.1 What an analyst does here

- Record: keep each engagement's notes, actions and documents current and filed against the right milestone.
- Meetings: prepare the pack before a client meeting and write the minutes and actions after it, the same day.
- Chasing: follow up client inputs the engagement lead is waiting on, and log every chase on the platform.
- Analysis: first-draft research, data cleaning and tables for the engagement lead to review.
- Office: one standing weekly item each (Part Four), plus tasks Ezinne assigns.

1.2 The reporting line

| Person | Role | What goes to them |
|---|---|---|
| Ezinne Orji | Executive Assistant to the Founding Partner, Abuja | Your tasks, reviews, blocks, evaluation, leave |
| The engagement lead on each project | Delivery | Questions about the content of the work |
| Abigail Oladejo | Administrative Assistant, reports to Debo | How things are done day to day |
| Debo | Founding Partner | Nothing directly unless Ezinne routes it |

Ezinne and the engagement leads agree your priorities between them. If two people give you work that clashes, tell Ezinne and let her decide. Do not try to resolve it yourself by working late.

1.3 The rules of the task system

- Every task has a brief (why it matters) and a definition of done (what finished looks like). If either is missing or unclear, ask before starting.
- The person who assigned a task reviews it. Submit to them, not to someone else.
- Move a task to In progress when you start. Ezinne reads the board, not your messages.
- Blocked: mark it blocked and write the reason in one or two sentences. It goes straight to the assigner.
- Changes requested: work comes back with a written note. Read the note, fix what it says, and keep the note for next time.
- Check-in date: most tasks carry one. Have something to show on that day, even if it is unfinished.
- Record your actual time when you submit. If it was triple the estimate, say so; that teaches the person who estimated it.

1.4 What your account reaches

- Yours: My desk, Tasks, Pipeline, Communications (prepare, not send), Campaigns (prepare, not send), Commitments, Decisions, Meetings, Rhythm, Knowledge, Asset Library.
- Client work: Projects, Deliverables, Time and Tools appear in your sidebar because you are staffed on engagements.
- Not yours: Finance, rates, user administration and the client portals. Nothing leaves the firm under your name until Ezinne has approved it.

Part Two: Your engagements

You each hold three. On every one, your job is the same: the record is accurate, the meetings are prepared and minuted, the chases are logged.

2.1 Favour Aina

| Engagement | Client | Where | What it is |
|---|---|---|---|
| Operational Turnaround and Culture Build | Haven Paediatric Centre | Lagos | Board-led turnaround of a paediatric and neonatal hospital. Audit done, growth plan being delivered. |
| Organisational Audit | Osteon Clinics | Lagos | Audit of an orthopaedic practice that has outgrown its company structure. Live staff surveys. |
| Diagnostic Audit | Arabella Women's Health | Asokoro, Abuja | Diagnostic audit of a women's health practice. Live staff surveys and a project page for the client. |

2.2 Ruth Oladejo

| Engagement | Client | Where | What it is |
|---|---|---|---|
| Medbury Division, Setup and Management | Medbury Healthcare Group | Lagos and Abuja | We are setting up and then running a new division for a healthcare group. |
| Medlyfe Introduces, Launch Programme | Medbury Healthcare Group | Lagos | The launch and follow-up programme for an aesthetics practice. |
| Management Retainer and Fundraising | House of Refuge (Freedom Foundation) | Lekki, Lagos | Monthly management of a rehabilitation facility, plus raising funds for it. |

2.3 How to get up to speed on each

1. Open the engagement under Projects. Read the description, milestones and the last month of notes.
2. Read the documents filed against it, newest first.
3. Write a one-page summary for yourself: who the client contacts are, what is due next, what is waiting on whom.
4. Show it to Ezinne by Wednesday 4 November. She will correct what is wrong, which is the point of doing it.

Part Three: The platform

3.1 Getting in

- Address: consultforafrica.com/login
- Password: the temporary one in your welcome email. Change it at first login under Settings.
- Landing page: My desk. It shows what is yours now, what is waiting on others, and what is due by date.

3.2 The surfaces you will use most

| Surface | Use it for | Good looks like |
|---|---|---|
| My desk | Start and end of each day | Nothing overdue without a reason written on it |
| Tasks | Everything assigned to you | Status always true; blocks explained |
| Projects | Your six engagements, three each | Notes and actions current within a day of any meeting |
| Meetings | Packs and minutes | Minutes and actions up the same day |
| Communications | Logging every call, email and chase | Every chase logged, with a next action and date |
| Pipeline | Leads and proposals | No lead silent for fourteen days without a note |
| Knowledge | Templates and past work | Check here before building something from nothing |

Part Four: Your standing weekly work

These come to your desk automatically from the office rhythm. Ezinne assigns and reviews them.

| Item | Owner | Day | Definition of done |
|---|---|---|---|
| Follow-up sweep across the pipeline | Favour | Thursday | Every lead with no contact in fourteen days chased or has a reason written on it. Every proposal sent over a week ago followed up. Anything needing a partner is on the commitment register with a name against it. |
| New clients and projects onto the platform | Ruth | Wednesday | Every client and engagement closed in the last week is on the platform with an engagement manager, dates and milestones, or is listed back to Ezinne with the specific detail missing. |

Abigail did both of these before you. Ask her to sit with you the first time.

Part Five: How you are evaluated

Ezinne evaluates you on the 28th of each month on the platform. The conversation happens before the form is filled in, so nothing in it should surprise you.

| Area | What Ezinne looks at |
|---|---|
| Technical skills | Accuracy of records, quality of first drafts, how much rework your work needs |
| Communication | Clear written updates, minutes the client could read, blocks raised early |
| Professionalism | Deadlines met or renegotiated before they pass, confidentiality, punctuality |
| Initiative | Spotting what is missing and fixing it, without being asked |
| Teamwork | Helping each other and Abigail, handing over cleanly |

- Scale: 1 to 5. A 3 means doing the job well. A 5 is rare and means operating above your level.
- Written feedback: at least one specific strength and one specific area to develop each month.

- Promotion: from month three, Ezinne can recommend you for the next consultant tier. That is earned on evidence in the records, not on time served.
- Your part: before the 28th, send Ezinne three lines. What you delivered, what went wrong, what you want to learn next month.

Part Six: How we write, and what never leaves the building

- Answer first. The first line says the result or the ask.
- Short. Cut every sentence that is not information.
- No dashes as punctuation in anything a client sees. Use a comma or a full stop.
- Names: Dr and surname for doctors until they tell you otherwise.
- Confidentiality: no client names, findings or figures outside the firm, including on personal social media and in conversation. In a market this small, a few harmless details identify a hospital.
- Money: you will see no fees. If a client raises money with you, say the engagement lead will come back to them, and tell Ezinne the same day.
- Sending: nothing goes to a client in your name until Ezinne has approved it.

Part Seven: Your first two weeks

| When | What |
|---|---|
| Fri 30 Oct | Log in, change password, read Parts One and Two |
| Mon 2 Nov | Walkthrough with Ezinne. Start on your three engagements. |
| Wed 4 Nov | One-page summary of each engagement to Ezinne. Ruth: first new-clients check, with Abigail. |
| Thu 5 Nov | Favour: first pipeline sweep, with Abigail |
| Fri 6 Nov | End-of-week note to Ezinne: what you did, what is unclear |
| Week two | Minute at least one client meeting each. Weekly check-in with Ezinne. |
| Sat 28 Nov | First monthly evaluation (Month 1) |
