across nursing, medical, pharmacy, lab and admin

The team has started using the staff page, and the pace is rising week on week. Three weeks after the town hall, most of the hospital has signed in at least once and twelve people used it this week.

Use is still concentrated. Nursing carries most of the activity, the morning huddle has not yet been recorded, and six members of staff have not signed in. Dr Tanwa and Abigail are sitting with each of them on shift next week.

02 What is in place

	Status
Staff page and sign-in	Live. Sign-in now works by email or mobile number
Daily and weekly tasks	17 tasks across every department, each one tickable on a phone
Reminders	The system follows up anything not recorded, first as a nudge, then a flag to the line manager
Clinical standards	33 standards drafted, waiting for clinical approval
Speaking up	Near misses, time wasted and recognition now ask for one sentence, so each one can be acted on and closed out with the team

03 What we need from you

	Ask	Why it matters
Dr Odedina	Approve the first five clinical standards this week: crash trolley, handover, drug administration, infection control, admission	Staff cannot study or be tested on a standard until it is approved. This is the next stage of the programme
All founders	Sign in to the staff page once, using your email address	The team notices who is there. Your presence is the strongest signal that this matters
All founders	Agree the formulary, so vendor-managed inventory can start	The supplier needs it before stock can move onto consignment and free the cash on the pharmacy shelf

04 The next four weeks

Weeks	What happens
27 Oct to 7 Nov	Daily tasks become routine. Every member of staff signed in. First standards approved and published
10 to 21 Nov	Speaking up becomes normal. Every report closed out and shared with the team
24 Nov onward	Staff study and acknowledge the approved standards, then are tested on them before the season peak

We will send the same snapshot every fortnight, so the trend is visible rather than described.
